FLINDERS

United Kingdom service men and women all conflicts plus those from Australia WW2, New Zealand WW2, Canada WW1 and WW2 including those killed in action

These lists have been compiled from data available at several web sites. The information for Australian, Canadian and New Zealand service people is reasonably correct and complete.

With United Kingdom records there are gaps due to some paperwork having been destroyed by fire, and general lack of co-ordination within UK military circles to maintain the records in a manner helpful to researchers. Some soldiers are listed more than once having had more than one service number allocated to them. Finding out who these ones were has been a time consuming task. Every UK soldier who saw action was awarded the British and Victory medals at the end of WW1, and the medal lists have survived. Many others also served but did not qualify for the medals, hence are hard to trace and so the list is of all known, rather than all.

The killed in action list is arranged in the following order: WW1, WW2.

Records for United Kingdom armed forces for WW2 appear to be closed until after 2050.
